Soviets Take More Than 400 Villages In Smashing Drive

Threaten Early Seizure of Donets Steel Centre; Now Near Major Base

LONDON, Sept. 3 (AP)—A conquering Red Army overran more than 400 villages today in smashing twelve-mile gains that threatened early seizure of the Donets steel centre of Stalin and the northern Ukraine citadel of Konotop, Moscow disclosed officially tonight.

A four-mile lunge on the central front also carried the Russians over the bodies of 4,000 enemy troops to a point within forty miles of the major base of Smolensk whence the Germans tried to take Moscow in 1941.

The Germans apparently were in headlong retreat in the Donets Basin, but also were being hurled back at other major points along the 600-mile front, Moscow said in a communique recorded by the Soviet radio monitor.

One Russian unit was only twenty miles east of Stalin, after capturing Zuevka, and other Soviet forces had spilled across the network of rail-ways radiating from that hub.

The Germans captured Stalin October 21, 1941, then triumphantly termed it the "Eisen of Russia" and comparing its importance with the one great, but now battered, Krupp armament works in the Ruhr Valley.

In the Ukraine the Russians reached a point only fourteen miles north of Konotop.

The Germans, perhaps preparing the homeland for news of the fall of Stalin, long Hitler's headquarters for southern front operations, made the unusual announcement tonight that the Soviet Army had launched a "grand scale" offensive in that area.

A German radio commentator, Gen. K. Dittmar, also declared in broadcast recorded by the Ministry of Information that military developments in Russia were "repeatedly critical" because of the necessity of Continued on Page 3

Liberals to Hold Meeting In September

Federation Gathering To Follow Members

OTTAWA, Sept. 3 (CP)—Hon. Norman McArthur, acting president of the National Liberal Federation, said in a statement tonight that the federation will meet in Ottawa, September 27, and that a meeting of Government supporters in Parliament will be held here September 24.

"No meeting of the National Liberal Federation has been held since war began, and because of the war the Liberal party has maintained no political organization since the general election of March, 1940," Mr. McArthur said.

"Other political parties have, for two years or more, been more active in the promotion of party interests. Since the Winnipeg convention, the Progressive Conservative party has built up an elaborate political organization. The new leader of the party (John Bracken) has given his full time to party organization throughout the country, and has left the leadership of the official Opposition in the House of Commons to one of his lieutenants, (Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader.)

"The political and organizational activity of the C.P.F. has been steadily intensified since early in the war... the political activities of the parties opposed to the administration have made increasingly apparent the necessity of presenting the Government's policies in their true light.

"It is to consider the present position of the Liberal party from the point of view of organization and education that its supporters in Parliament and in the National Liberal Federation will be called together at the dates indicated."

Drop 19,000 Tons Of Bombs on Axis

LONDON, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (CP)—Although restricted by weather, British bombers dumped more than 19,000 tons of bombs on Germany and Italy during August—3,000 tons more than in July, the Air Ministry said today in a monthly review.

Germany alone was the target last month for 15,000 tons. The bulk of the deadly loads were concentrated on Hamburg, Nuremberg and Berlin.

A bomb fell on Britain during daylight in August, and only on eight nights were bombs dropped.

Bombs Sink Transports Of Japanese

Three Sent Down Near Wewak in New Guinea

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (AP)—Three Japanese transports in a convoy have been sunk by Allied bombers near Wewak, New Guinea, Allied headquarters announced today.

An enemy destroyer and a fourth transport were set afire. Wewak, 350 miles northwest along the New Guinea coast from the ground-fighting base at Salamaua, is the sector where more than 360 Japanese planes have been destroyed recently in a series of raids.

In the attacks on the convoy of seven ships, twelve intercepting Zeroes were shot down.

The Japanese used a balloon barrage in a futile attempt to halt the attack.

This was the first mention in months of Japanese convoys in the vicinity of Northern New Guinea, where the enemy has relied almost entirely recently on barges for supply and reinforcement.

At Salamaua, headquarters said there was little change in ground positions, but that the Japanese had suffered heavy losses in fighting south of the airfield.

Last definite reports on positions placed the Australians and Americans in control of the south bank of the Francisco River, except along the coast where it empties into the bay.

The river, which has been crossed inland to the north bank by the Australians, flows just south of the airfield.

BOMBERS HAVE STRONG ESCORT The convoy, consisting of five transports and two destroyers, was attacked in the Wewak harbor by medium bombers with strong fighter escort.

"Coming in at masthead height, our bombers scored direct hits with 1,000-pound bombs on three freighter transports, each of 7,000 tons, sinking them," today's communique said.

In addition, one of the escorting warships and a 1,000-ton cargo ship sustained direct hits and were left ablaze.

Several small craft in the harbor also were sunk.

In addition to shooting down twelve of thirty-five intercepting enemy fighters, the raiders prob-

Italian Banker Visits London on Behalf of Pope

LONDON, Sept. 3 (CP)—Traveling under diplomatic privilege and honey-bound to "see and hear" nothing of military or political importance, the Italian banker, Signor Giovanni Fumini, technically an enemy citizen, arrived here today to discuss Vatican finances with British capitalists.

Since he officially represents a neutral state, the fifty-six-year-old banker, who has no record as a Fascist, and who is financial adviser to Pope Pius XII, will be allowed free movement in London provided he refrains from interviews and restricts his discussions to business.

The Vatican has large British investments.

Berlin Again Target of Bombers in Night Raid

Follows Devastating Blows at German Aircraft Repair Plants and Fields

LONDON, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (CP)—The R.A.F. smashed again at Berlin last night, it was announced today, renewing the assault on the German capital which twice has been blasted heavily in the last two weeks.

The preliminary British announcement of the assault on the German capital gave no details, but information from other quarters indicated the raid was of major calibre.

Associated Press dispatches from Stockholm reported that a steady stream of high-flying planes, apparently the returning R.A.F. raiders, passed over the southern tip of Sweden for more than an hour early this morning, drawing the heaviest anti-aircraft barrage of the war from Swedish batteries.

It was the second heavy attack on Berlin this week, a great R.A.F. armada, having unloaded approximately 1,500 tons of explosives and incendiaries on the city Tuesday night.

Berlin also was under attack three times last week.

Last night the Berlin, Cologne and Calais radars were silenced soon after southeast coast observers reported hearing the R.A.F. armada head out over the coast. Then the Prague, Toulouse, Breslau and Vichy radars left the air to make the blackout almost a record one, and indicating that the night attack was wide-spread.

All but five of Germany's home stations were reported by Reuters' News Agency to be off the air late Friday night, a record "blackout." Such radio silence usually indicates night raids by the R.A.F.

Only One End: Another Success

By DANIEL DE LUCE Representing the Combined American Press

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WHICH INVADDED ITALY, Sept. 3 (AP)—Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery addressed a personal message to his Eighth Army troops just before they attacked the Italian mainland, telling them there could be but one end to the battle—success.

"This was his message: 'Having captured Sicily as our first ally of the Italian home country, the time now has come to carry the battle onto the mainland of Italy.'

"To the Eighth Army has been given the great honor of being the first troops of the Allied armies to land on the mainland of the continent of Europe."

"We have a good plan and air support on a greater scale than we ever had before."

"There can only be one end to this great battle—another success."

"Forward to victory."

"Let us knock Italy out of the war."

"Good luck, and God bless you all."

Urge Italians to Receive Armies as the Invading Forces Extend Foothold

Prodigious Air and Naval Strength And Powerful Army Give Advantage

LONDON, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (CP)—The London Daily Express said in its early Saturday edition: "From the Italian battlefield early today came news that the Eighth Army had enlarged its bridgeheads to a depth of ten miles at some places."

"The advance was continuing in a northerly direction toward the first substantial Axis defences near Palmi, more than twenty miles by road from the landing beaches at Reggio Calabria."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 3 (CP)—Crack British and Canadian troops of the Eighth Army, aided by a tremendous weight of Allied air and sea power, fought today to consolidate and extend positions on the toe of the Italian mainland after a pre-dawn landing launched from Sicily.

Thousands of British and Canadian soldiers streamed across the narrow Messina Strait in an armada of small landing craft. The crossing was made under a heavy artillery barrage laid down from the Sicilian side of the straits and with the protection of a naval force of cruisers, monitors, destroyers and gunboats.

No official word on progress of the attack was forthcoming since the landing was announced in a special communique issued within three hours of the start of the newest phase of the Allied campaign to smash the Axis. No further official word was expected until Saturday.

The assault on Europe proper came less than three weeks after the conclusion of the Sicilian campaign, in which the Canadian First Division played a key part, helping to smash the strong Axis Mount Etna defence line. The Canadians were withdrawn from the fighting about ten days before the conquest of the island springboard was completed.

AMERICAN ARMY POISED FOR ACTION The United States Seventh Army of Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, which fought alongside the Eighth Army in Sicily, was not yet in action. Other powerful Allied forces were poised in North Africa.

The German radio said the invaders were met by Italian troops and there was no mention of German troops. It was expected, however, that the attacking forces will clash before long with some of the German

Expect More Landings by U.S. Forces

Believe Assault to Be Made Higher on Coast

LONDON, Sept. 3 (CP)—While British and Canadian troops burst through the first barricade of the European mainland today, official silence hiding the whereabouts of the American forces who shared in the Sicilian conquest prompted speculation that new landings would be made soon, perhaps including an assault higher up the Italian coast to hit the enemy from behind.

The Berlin radio said the Axis was prepared for "two or three blows against the Continent" simultaneously.

As the Eighth Army landed, there stood behind them the highly-mechanized forces of the American Seventh Army under Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, which had swept through two-thirds of Sicily.

And somewhere in the Mediterranean two powerful forces, the British First and American Fifth Armies, awaited battle orders. Not only might some of these forces land above the Eighth Army, but some elements might join the British and Canadians in early moves.

A short-cut thrust north of the present battlefield would speed the capture of Italy's southernmost good

Say Invasion Via Channel Not Likely

LONDON, Sept. 3 (CP)—Unless extraordinary developments occur within the next few weeks, it is believed a full-scale invasion of Europe across the English Channel is not among the planned Allied offensives.

As British and Canadian troops established a bridgehead on the toe of Italy, there was much speculation in unofficial circles here concerning a possible attack through Northern France and the Low Countries.

The consensus seemed to be this: "Perhaps this fall—most likely not until Spring."

At the most, six weeks of "invasion weather" remains before the Channel will be beset by unfriendly tides, seasonal wind and rain squalls.

The middle of November is viewed as the latest possible date for invasion.

BULLETINS

QUEBEC MAY VOTE MONTREAL, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (CP)—The Gazette, in a newspaper story today said that according to usually reliable information here, the Government of Premier Godbout had decided to hold a Fall session of the Quebec Legislature, with a Provincial election shortly afterwards.

BLAST AT PLANES STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (AP)—Anti-aircraft guns at Malmoe on the southern tip of Sweden sent up the heaviest barrage of the war early today as an almost unbroken stream of foreign warplanes passed over the coast for an hour. Low clouds made it impossible to identify the planes, but it was believed they might be British raiders returning from another large-scale attack upon Germany—probably upon Berlin.

EVACUATE VIENNA STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4 (Saturday) (AP)—Swedish press dispatches from Budapest today said the Germans are evacuating most of the women and children from Vienna. The Allied invasion of Italy was believed to be the determining factor for the evacuation of the Austrian capital, which the Nazis apparently thought was immune from Allied bombing raids until attacks on a Messerschmitt fighter plant at Wiener Neustadt, thirty miles southwest of Vienna, August 15.

GIVE WAR BOND TO CHURCHILL WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill started off the United States Treasury's Third War Loan drive ahead of time today, receiving a $100 bond from Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau and declaring that the war would be shortened appreciably if the $15,000,000,000 total is subscribed fully.

At a ceremony in the diplomatic reception room of the White House, the Prime Minister said to Morgenthau:

"I have often thought, Mr. Secretary, you must be one of the bravest men in the world, and that you ought to have the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Victoria Cross and all the other decorations of all the Allies for being able to lie down and sleep quietly amongst all these astronomical figures of modern finance. You've borne this great burden with success."

"This bond, which you have given to me, providing you make sure the legal details are satisfactorily arranged, I shall hand over to my wife for sale of the benefit of Mrs. Churchill's War Relief Fund."

These "legal details" it was said at the Treasury Department, will require the naming of the relief fund as a co-owner. However, there was no expectation that the bond would ever be redeemed, as Mr. Churchill predicted to Morgenthau that it would bring "several thousand pounds" at auction in Britain.

EIGHTEEN FLYERS KILLED FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 3 (AP)—Eighteen flyers were killed near here today in the collision of two four-engined bombers.

Three Victoria Officers Among Arrivals Overseas

Maj. O'Toole, Lt.-Col. MacGregor and Maj. F. T. McIntosh With Large Contingent

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 3 (CP).—Ready for the day of attack, a large group of thousands of reinforcements for Canada's land, sea and air forces sailed from here recently. Their arrival in Britain was announced tonight.

These additions for the Empire's "combined operations" forces came from all sections of the Dominion, and represented scores of different units, with army personnel predominating. With them were representatives of the sister forces, some R.C.A.F. women's division personnel and a group of army nursing sisters.

Maintaining the international flavor always marked in these eastward Atlantic crossings were representatives of various foreign services, Norwegian, Fighting French, Polish army men and flyers mingled with their comrades-in-arms of British descent or sought out men from the Mother Country in the Canadian or British forces.

Among them was a complete artillery unit. The gunners were drawn from all Canada.

Three British officers on the transport provided a cross-section of the R.A.F. Training Command in Canada. Group Capt. S. L. Pope, an Irishman by birth, had been in charge of an R.A.F. operational training unit in the West for the last eighteen months. He was relieved to return to Britain for other duties.

"But I'll be back some time," he said, "I developed quite a liking for the coast when I was there."

MAJOR O'TOOLE, OF VICTORIA, THERE

Maj. J. D. A. O'Toole, Victoria; Maj. Sam Irvine and Maj. J. B. Clark, Medicine Hat, Alta., also were in this group.

Maj. O'Toole is administrative officer at Gordon Head, B.C., Officers' Training Centre.

Maj. Vic Roberts, of Regina, returned to Britain on duty. He went over two years ago, and last April came back to Canada on duty tour and was posted at military headquarters in Ottawa.

Another Victoria officer, Maj. P. T. McIntosh, had been in Canada for a period of instruction duties and now returned to rejoin the overseas army.

Other officers included Capt. J. T. Brydon, Royston, B.C., and Capt. W. H. Stevenson, Winnipeg.

Among a large group of R.C.A.F. officers, some of whom had already seen action overseas, while others were setting out for their first "ops," were Pilot Officers Cecil McLeod, Port Arthur, Ont.; James Winnings, Winnipeg; Jack Wood, Edmonton;

N. M. Bodner, Edmonton, and A. B. Jackson, Edmonton, Sask.

Several lieutenant-colonels and other officers from training camps across the Dominion went to Britain for inspection tours of military camps in the British Isles. Then they will return to their commands to put in effect the new knowledge of methods gained.

Among them was Lt.-Col. Jack MacGregor, of Victoria, now stationed at a centre in Alberta. Col. MacGregor holds the Victoria Cross, Military Cross and Bar, and Distinguished Conduct Medal, all won in the first Great War.

Indians Arrested For Store Robbery

Andy Jackson and Charlie John, Indians, were arrested today and Provincial Police say they will be charged with breaking and entering the general store at Coespece, West Coast of Vancouver Island. The store was broken into on August 25 and various articles and between $400 and $500 in cash taken.

Fifty gallons of gasoline also were stolen from the Union Oil Company at Nootka and an attempt made to enter the Nootka-Banfield Company store there.

The two men got away in their launch, but were spotted by an R.C.A.F. patrol plane, which radioed police and the men were picked up between Nootka and Ucluelet.

Cash to the amount of $460 was found in their possession.

The swordfish is related to the mackerel family.

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 3 (CP).—In a mass funeral service, thirty-four victims of a fire at sea aboard a merchant ship were buried here today.

Domestic services of the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches were recited at the side of a great open grave where the seamen were buried together. Full naval honors were accorded.

The sailors were among more than sixty men who perished when their ship caught fire 300 miles off the Nova Scotia coast after a collision with a merchantman.

The vessel, with the thirty-four aboard, was towed into this port Tuesday.

More than thirty members of the crew are listed as missing. Three survivors have been taken to St. John's, Nfld.

Many Victorians In Newest Group Reaching Britain

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 3 (CP).—For a group of soldiers from Victoria waiting for their troop-laden transport to sail, this was more than a much-desired chance overseas—it was an anniversary. Arrival of the troops in Britain was announced tonight. Four years to the day from the time they were mobilized, these sons of the West were ready for the ocean voyage they had awaited "forty-eight months."

"Boy, it's great to be getting across—what we've been waiting for," enthused Sgt. George Williamson.

"Yes," chimed in Sgt. Ben Hogan, "we want to see the world. Of course, we haven't even seen Canada since we left British Columbia, but it was a nice train ride anyway."

Other Victorians were Sergeants Al Hardy, Harry Thompson and Norman Brown, Bdr. Vernon Bennett and Gnr. R. P. Hansen, a native of Denmark originally.

Two other westerners were Bdr. Charles de Caigny, of New Westminster, B.C., and Sgt. L. W. McClintock, Golden, B.C.

"PERILS OF NYOKA"

When the war's casualties are compiled the number of dead in Russia, including the ordinary people shot behind the German lines, will "tagged the statisticians," said Sir Walter Cuthbert recently.

Canadian Army on Continent At Direct Grips With Enemy As Fifth Year of War Starts

OTTAWA, Sept. 3 (CP).—Crack units of the Canadian Army are fighting on the continent of Europe as the war moves into its fifth year. Canadian naval forces are ferrying more troops toward European soil and Canadian airmen are blasting enemy strongpoints with bombs.

The Allied landing on the shores of Italy early today is the latest in a series of moves which put the Canadian Army in the war scoring column right up with the other services which have been at direct grips with the enemy over a longer period.

The anniversary adds all three enlarged, more efficient and better equipped than a year ago, and slated for a growing share of the United Nations' offensive operations against the enemy nations.

The campaign in Sicily, in which the First Division bore the brunt of some of the heaviest fighting as a component part of the British Eighth Army, definitely put the army in the scoring column this summer.

HELPED SQUELCH U-BOAT MENACE
The navy, in constant action since the outbreak of war, now can look back on a major share in what may rank as one of the positive United Nations' victories, the squelching of the U-boat menace in the North Atlantic.

The air force, which got its first taste of real action in the Battle of Britain in the summer of 1940, can claim the equivalent of a major victory in the now-established success of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, which has given the United Nations air superiority over Germany, and, on the opera, the big part played by Canadians in the bombing offensive against Germany, still in progress and with consequences still to be appraised.

As fast as new ships can be launched the navy will increase its fighting force during the coming year, its role as a small ship force escorting convoys, battling submarines with corvettes and destroyers and ferrying troops to enemy shores in landing craft, is well marked out.

The prospect for the air force in the coming year is a struggle to keep up the output of trained air crew recruits from the schools of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada, and more fighting, bombing and torpedo-laying over enemy and enemy-occupied territory.

Recently Defence Minister Ralston said the army had "passed the expansion stage." That has been taken to mean that it will see the war through with the five divisions now overseas and the three divisions mobilized in Canada, plus various non-divisional formations.

ARMORED FORMATIONS NOT YET EMPLOYED
One of the powerhouses of the Canadian Army—the armored formations—has yet to be employed. In the five-division-two-corps army overseas are two armored divisions, neither of which went to Sicily.

They, with the Second Division, battle-tested at Dieppe in 1942, and a third infantry division, await the unfolding of larger land operations with a confidence born of extensive training and modern equipment.

In the Pacific theatre as well as in Europe, the fifth year of war holds promise for action for the Canadian Army. A Canadian ground force shared with Americans in the occupation of Alaska Island territory from the Japanese.

The Japanese chose not to fight on Kiska, but the next step may be Japanese territory and something different.

War Work Strike
WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 3 (CP).—Employees of Godfreyson, Limited, plant here today quit work in a dispute over a union agreement. The company, which is engaged in war work, employs about 1,000 persons.

James H. Barth, secretary-treasurer of the company, said the stoppage was precipitated when Aulley Miller, chairman of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) Union committee, refused to go on a swing shift job as provided by the company's agreement with the union.

Union officials said the strike was the result of discrimination against the chairman of the plant committee.

War Work Strike
The first waves of British and Canadian troops struck the beaches, fanned out and established a bridgehead for other oncoming barges that spilled their loads of men and equipment on the shores before the foothills of Aspromonte—Bitter Mountain—a range that is the spinal column of the toe of Italy.

By that time the Allied land and sea barrage had lifted to gnaw at Axis defences in the crags above, and down found the protecting mantle of Allied planes overhead.

"Allied forces under the command of General Eisenhower have continued their advance," said the brief bulletin issued two hours after the landing.

Speakers here emphasized that the new assault was not to be regarded as a "second front," but merely a sequel to the North African campaign.

Must Be Good Soldier on the Civilian Front

"One must still be a good soldier, even though it is not possible to serve in the military forces," Maj.-Gen. Edouard de Bellefeuille Panel, C.M.G., D.S.O., chief of the Department of Investigation, C.P.R., said in an interview Friday at the Empress Hotel. Mme. Panel accompanied her husband on his visit here.

A distinguished veteran of the war of 1914-1918, and called to serve as Director of Internal Operations for Canada on September 3, 1939, in the present war, General Panel was recently returned from active service, and immediately returned to his post with the C.P.R., with whom he has served since 1925.

"There is work to be done carrying munitions and the troops, and a great transportation system is of utmost importance. The railways carry valuable war materials across the continent to the many ports for trans-shipment overseas," he said.

"Just think what would happen if something happened to immobilize the trains or the boats," he continued. "Tanks and guns and foodstuffs had to be kept rolling, or the soldiers could not fight. Trains and ships were doing a stupendous task."

"Everyone doing vital work is necessary to win the war. That is what I tell my men. Without the supplies we send them Sicily could not have been won."

Commenting on the invasion of Italy proper, he said: "It is a grand thing, and what makes me is the speed with which they have moved on; it is not two months since Sicily was invaded."

An idea of the magnitude of the attack could be gained from the news that 2,500 boats had been used to transport supplies.

Whether or not this was the major invasion move, one could not tell, he said. "There were many places where an attack could be launched, and only a very few men could tell what would happen next. Churchill, Roosevelt, a few of the key men. The attack on Italy might only be a feint, or it might be the big thing."

FOLLOWS TRADITIONS OF FAMILY
Born in Ottawa, the son of Colonel the Hon. Charles E. Panel, deputy minister of militia and national defence, and a brother of Brigadier-General H. A. Panel, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., who served in both South Africa and in France in 1914-1918, Maj.-Gen. E. Panel followed the traditions of his family.

He served successively as Q.M.G. of the Canadian 1st Division, Q.M.G. and G.O.C. of the 4th Canadian Division. In 1919 he was appointed D.A. and Q.M.G., Canadian Corps, with rank of brigadier-general.

Mentioned in dispatches six times, he won the D.S.O. in January, 1918; C.M.G., January, 1918; and in the same year was named Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur. The following year he resigned his commission and was honorary ADC to two governors-general.

Truly Canadian, his mother's family, the de Bellefeuille, first set foot on Canadian soil 300 years ago, and his father's ancestors came to Canada in 1740.

Maj.-Gen. Panel will remain in Victoria on C.P.R. business for a few days.

Brenner Railway

Only one bomber was lost in the long, unscathed plunge, described officially as "perhaps the best day the Brenner Pass from North Africa ever had."

At Bolzano, they scored direct hits on the main tracks and on the railway bridge, sent ledges from overhanging cliffs tumbling onto the rail lines, and hit the station. Four enemy planes were shot down there.

Besides the disruption of the railroads in the Naples area and below the Brenner Pass, official reports also disclosed that the raid on Pisa on the northwest coast of Italy on Tuesday had blocked all railroads from Pisa to Leghorn, Florence, the naval base of La Spezia, and Marina di Pisa, while the coastal railway and the city's freight yards were damaged heavily.

Planes raiding Canello were attacked by sixty to seventy enemy fighters to touch off one of the heaviest dogfights ever waged over Italian soil. The fight continued out to sea.

Two important river bridges were damaged at Trenton, and a highway bridge was broken.

Cargoes of high explosives tore up the railway yards, warehouses and railway cars at Bologna, and great fires were set.

Thirty-four enemy planes were destroyed during all of yesterday's widespread fighting, and fifteen Allied planes were missing.

MARINE and TRANSPORTATION

Lieut. J. W. Golby, Victoria
Executive Officer of First
Algerine in Canada's Navy

By SYD THOMAS

A BOARD H.M.C.S. SAULT STE. MARIE, Sept. 3 (CP).—If it's true that a happy ship is a successful ship, then the Sault Ste. Marie, the Royal Canadian Navy's first "Algerine" class escort vessel should be blessed with good hunting.

For the "Sweet Sue"—that's the nickname her ship crew gave her almost before they were formally introduced—she is a happy ship. Every one agrees on that, from her bluff, genial R.C.N.V.R. captain, Lt. Cmdr. R. Jackson, of Calgary, right down to the greatest stoker.

And it was the Sault Ste. Marie, Canada's chief of naval staff, chose for his trip to Halifax recently. To have the chief aboard adds no little glamour to the ship on her maiden voyage to the salty Atlantic.

The prairies and inland provinces of Canada supplied most of the crew, some of whom were going to sea for the first time. But those with seagoing experience in corvettes and mine sweepers noted at once her greater roominess and seaworthiness.

MIDWAY BETWEEN CORVETTE AND FRIGATE

The Algerine ship is 230 feet long, about midway in size between a corvette and a frigate, and is to be used primarily for escort and anti-submarine work. With a complement of over 100, including officers, she is faster and more heavily armed than either a corvette or mine sweeper.

Most of her details are secret. But it can be said she has a husky four-inch gun, and carries plenty of anti-aircraft guns and a flock of depth charges. Built in Port Arthur, Ont., she is the first of her kind to join the R.C.N.V.R., although several have been built for the Royal Navy. The second of the class, H.M.C.S. Winnipeg, has just taken her trial runs in the Great Lakes and soon will head for the seafarers.

Lt. Cmdr. Jackson has been in the volunteer reserve since the late 20's and in 1934 was given command of the Calgary Division, R.C.N.V.R. After recruiting for two years after war broke out, he went to sea and later was given command of the corvette Kenogami.

High-colored, and the popular embodiment of a sea captain, the skipper chuckles over the crew's nickname for the ship.

LIEUT. J. W. GOLBY
EXECUTIVE OFFICER

The executive officer or "Jimmie the One" is Lieut. J. W. Golby, D.S.C., R.C.N.V.R., of Victoria. His brother, Lt. Cmdr. Thomas W. Golby, R.C.N.V.R., was skipper of the corvette Webyburn, and was killed when that vessel was sunk in the Mediterranean several months ago.

The black-headed Jimmie didn't want to talk much about his decoration, won at Dunkerque. He was attached to the Royal Navy for two years and at Dunkerque landed with a squad of demolition engineers to blast equipment and installations so they would be of no use. He was in France twenty-four days.

The officers included Lieut. P. David, Winnipeg, navigating officer; Sub-Lt. J. Morrison, Salmon

Herbert Hoover Asserts
Victory Now Inevitable

Former U.S. President Urges "Cooling Off" Period After War Before Peace Settlements

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 3 (CP).—Former President Herbert Hoover tonight declared "victory now is inevitable" and said the United Nations should refrain from too much haste in drawing up final peace settlements after the war.

In a speech for delivery before the Foreign Policy Association and the University of Minnesota, Hoover declared "the world must have time to cool off and recover a balance of judgment if a lasting peace is to be made." He continued:

"When firing ceases the world will be filled with violent emotions. There will be white-hot hate and indignation against the enemy for having brought the world to this state. The air will be filled with vengeance. This is no atmosphere for long-view statesmanship, which must distinguish between guilty leadership and misled peoples."

The former President said that if the world had five years in which to consider the Treaty of Versailles in 1919 those documents never would have been signed. He recalled that "it was six years from the victory of Yorktown and the Constitution of the United States," and said "it was time well spent."

SUGGESTS PEACE IN FOUR STEPS

He proposed that peace be arranged in four steps:

1. Agreement before firing ceases that a few leading countries among 12,000,000 bushels less than in 1942. Manitoba Pool Elevators Limited today reported in a farm survey.

The report estimated the crop at 40,395,000 bushels, with an average yield of 24.5 bushels per acre from 1,640,000 acres. This compares with a crop of 52,000,000 bushels from 1,830,000 acres last year. The average yield in 1942 was 26.9 bushels to the acre.

Cats and barley, flax and rye all show lower yields compared with the 1942 harvest.

Crop reports from the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway today showed harvesting progressing well in the Prairie Provinces, with 70 per cent of the threshing completed in Southern Manitoba.

Recent rains caused delay in some districts but they will benefit late crops.

Women's Institutes
LAKE HILL W.I.
The September meeting of Lake Hill Women's Institute will be held on Thursday, owing to Labor Day falling on the usual meeting day.

Care for Stockings;
Small Things Count
A pulled thread or snag in a stocking should be fixed at once. A run-stop liquid that can be bought in the ten-cent store can be carried in the purse. Water the hose can be mended or taken to a repair shop. Nail polish as a run stopper can be used in emergencies but should never be used on acetate rayon fabrics as it may damage the fabric. Be sure garters are not too short or long. They should help prevent runs and holes in the top of the stocking. One way to determine proper hose size is to stand on a ruler and measure the foot from the heel to the tip of the toe. Then add a half-inch to this foot measure—except for women who wear at least an extra inch should be allowed for shrinkage.

FOUR CUPS OF TEA
INSTEAD OF THREE
The recent increase in our taxation now permits us a half pound every six weeks instead of every eight. Four cups for every three.

To users of a finer tea like SALADA who count so much on the comfort and refreshment of their favourite brew the increase must be doubly welcome.

To Live With Love

—By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS—

CHAPTER XXX
They rode in silence and the tenderness which Freda and Ian had tried desperately to avoid lay excitingly between them.

Finally Bill said "I don't suppose you've seen the evening paper."
"No, I haven't. Young Ian took it away for the comics." She turned her head a little and looked at him. But she couldn't bear it. It hurt. . . . She wanted to move closer to him and put her arm through his as she had done in the past and say, "Open the windshield, Bill. I like the wind to reach through my hair. It makes me feel young and crazy."

He said, "The divorce went through. There was a small notice about it in the paper tonight. It's all over."

After a moment she said, "If you're glad, then I'm glad for you."
"If I'm glad!"

The Brentwood Arms rose tall and forbidding before them. A dim light burned in the spacious lobby. As Bill slowly brought the car to the curb, a doorman sprang to attention.

Bill got out and opened the car door for her as courtesy he had neglected in later years and together they walked inside to the elevator.

"There's no operator on at this time of night," she said. "But I can see myself on. Thank you for bringing me home."

"Oh, that's all right. It was nothing."
The elevator came down and she entered it. . . . closing him out.

When the elevator stopped, she stepped off and walked quietly down the long hall to her apartment door. Opening her white purse for her key, she drew out an envelope. She had intended to mail this earlier in the day. It must be mailed! It must be mailed at once! The message must reach Clive without delay.

Written with great difficulty last night, re-read this morning, addressed, sealed and stamped, the letter to Clive had been in her purse all day, and all day its contents had been running through her mind.

She returned quickly to the elevator and went down and through the lobby to the street.

The doorman said, seeing the letter, "I'll mail it for you, Mrs. Sturtevant."

"Thank you, but I'll do it. The box isn't far."

The street was dark and deserted. As she walked to the mail box on the corner, she went over in her mind once more what she had written to Clive last night.

"Clive, dear:
"I received your last letter in which you asked for a postponement of our marriage. In the autumn and not before, you said, could you get away."
"Clive, we have heard so much recently about 'our way of life.' The American way? They mean, of course, But I've been thinking lately a good bit about your way of life and mine, our individual ways. What we had in Florida was good and lovely and wonderful. I shall never regret it and I shall always remember it as the most exciting thing that ever happened to me, and thank you with love for the way you handled it."
"It was an oasis for me, as you must surely know. And I loved you. I loved you in a way new and exciting for me, and as I had never loved anyone before. Because I have learned that young love and mature love are two very different things, each unforgettable in its time."
"Dear, I am not afraid of sharing the hardships of your pioneer life. My own life was very simple indeed until a few years ago. I am not afraid of change or new people or new surroundings. I am not afraid of having less materially than I have now. But what I am afraid of

BLUFFER THE ADDER
TRIES TO BLUFF

To bluff is to pretend. When anyone pretends that they are what they are not or that they have got something which they haven't got they are bluffing. If someone makes you think a thing which isn't so they have bluffed you. One who is to the habit of doing such things, or trying to, is a bluffer. It is because of his habit of trying to make people think he is what he is not, and often according to Bluffer the Adder is called Bluffer. Of all the little people who live on the Green Meadows or in the Green Forest, there isn't another who can even approach Bluffer the Adder in pretending to be something very different from what he really is.

Now Farmer Brown's Boy is very like most other people in that he doesn't like snakes. In fact, for a long time he was very much afraid of them, and whenever he saw a snake he would run away. One day he was out in the Green Meadows, and he saw a little snake. He was just about to run away when he saw that it was a Bluffer the Adder. He was just about to run away when he saw that it was a Bluffer the Adder. He was just about to run away when he saw that it was a Bluffer the Adder.

SMART FASHIONS FOR FALL

R.C.A.F. (W.D.) Globe Trotter

L.A. A. KING, R.C.A.F. (W.D.)

THE wide world "is home" to Leading Airwoman Arleen King of the Royal Canadian Air Force station at Trenton, Ont. Born in Singapore, she was educated in India and England—she has lived in New Zealand, Australia, Tahiti, Java, Honolulu—and, until her enlistment, lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. L. King at 609 No. 3 Road, Singapore, Lulu Island, B.C.

In Canada for the past six years, she and her family were safe enough when Singapore fell. But not so fortunate were her uncle and aunt who were bombed out of Singapore, and left just before its fall—were bombed out of Java and finally escaped to Kenya Colony, South Africa.

If it was neither of these he knew that he had no cause to be afraid. And still he was just a little afraid. It didn't seem possible that anyone who could look and act as ugly and fierce could be wholly harmless. He took off his coat and swung it at Bluffer, who struck at it savagely. Then Farmer Brown's boy discovered something. When Bluffer had struck at his coat he hadn't opened his mouth to bite at all!

"You're bluffing. That's what you're doing!" he cried. "I'm not afraid of you!"

Next story: Bluffer the Adder Tries Another Kind of Bluff. (Released by Associated Newspapers)

out that with the exception of two it was very foolish and silly to fear any of them. These two were Buzzy-tail the Rattler and Pilot the Copperhead, each of whom is very dangerous because his bite is poisonous. Had he lived in the south he would have had cottonmouth the Moccasin, who lives in swamps and close to water, to add as one to be feared.

All other members of the snake family in this part of the Great World are quite harmless and many of them are friends of man, or would be if he would let them be. All this Farmer Brown's boy had found out by reading and asking questions, so as with Old Mr. Toad safe in his pocket he turned back to see what sort of a fellow Bluffer the Adder was he didn't have the least bit of fear. In his haste to catch Old Mr. Toad and make sure that no harm should come to him he had taken only a glance at Bluffer and now he was going back to have a better look at him, for it was the first time he ever had seen him.

Bluffer was not coiled up as Farmer Brown's boy had left him. In fact, he wasn't to be seen at all. He had run away. "He can't have gone," thought Farmer Brown's boy as he looked this way and that way on the ground. A little movement of the grass at one side caught his eyes and a few steps in that direction showed him Bluffer crawling away. Now Bluffer is not at all like Mr. Blacksnake, who is long and slim and moves like a flash. Bluffer is rather short, and for the length of his body is thick. You have only to glance at him to know that he is not built for speed. No one knows this better than Bluffer himself. The instant he knew that he was discovered he threw himself into a coil, drew a long breath which made his body swell out, flattened his head and made his neck appear three times as big as it really is, faced Farmer Brown's boy with his head drawn back to strike, and hissed so loudly and fiercely that Farmer Brown's boy actually jumped back.

No wonder, Bluffer was the very picture of anger and ugliness. Buzzy-tail the Rattler himself couldn't have looked more dangerous. In fact, it is doubtful if he could have.

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If September 4 is your birthday, the best hours are from 9 to 11 a.m., from 1 to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a.m., from 5 to 7 p.m. and from 9 to 11 p.m.

You can expect the average person to display an unusual degree of intelligence today, especially those engaged in work requiring mental astuteness. If you will give anyone just half a chance now you may be pleasantly surprised at their ability, for nearly everyone should be in an amiable humor. Through participation in social activities advantageous connections are apt to be made and a good deal of useful information gained. Through ramifications of relationships you may have reason to believe that all the world is kin. If you go around doing a tactless amount of criticizing, especially in public places. Married and engaged couples, and those convinced they fit in with one of Cupid's nuptial schemes may find it helpful to remember "we may with advantage at times forget what we know," especially if it entails unpleasant past-and-gone incidents.

If a woman and September 4 is your birthday and if, for any reason, you have been experiencing periods of discouragement start in now living for the future, for apparently it has a great deal worth-while to offer you. Refuse to let unpleasant thoughts of the past interfere in any way with the forming of happy ones, anticipating a turn in your affairs that will give you many reasons for rejoicing. Indulge in building air castles, for with their rearing will come an influx of optimism that will make the world seem to be a better and brighter place to live in. As a public stenographer, secretary, writer, teacher, sales agent, florist, interior decorator, business manager, artist, professional entertainer, or through unselfishly serving your government in its present time of pressing need for efficient workers, you should be able to make an enviable record and reputation. Let dictates of your heart and not outside influences hold supreme sway over your marital affairs, if you would enjoy to the fullest degree the blessings of nuptial happiness.

The child born on September 4 should, at an early age, give evidence of possessing a fearless spirit, love of adventure, even disposition, and plenty of common sense. An insatiable desire to succeed in whatever undertakes will be the only incentive needed for Virgo's child to ultimately win laurels as a statesman ready to defend it.

If a man and September 4 is your natal day, if you will respect the laws of Nature as much as you do those formulated by custom you may have little cause to complain of your physical well-being. The man who trends life's pathway slowly but surely makes few mistakes, so avoid being in too much of a hurry to reach the gateway of success. You must also remember that there are other things in life besides money. If you expect to be happy as a shipbuilder, psychologist, educator, scientist, contractor, journalist, author, painter, musician, composer, actor, broker, financier, theologian, jurist, physician, business executive, merchant, or as one of your country's fighting forces, you apparently have a most promising future.

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 2 (AP).—E. B. Rutledge paid for a hotel room with a $1,000 bill that he thought was "only $100." Police Lieut. L. M. Carroll said the hotel manager discovered the error. Next day, Rutledge again registered at the hotel, and was brought to police headquarters to be given his $1,000 change. "It's not mine," he insisted. "But I had a $1,000 bill but it's in my trunk." It wasn't. "All right," Rutledge acknowledged. "I guess it's mine."

THE DAY'S ROUND-UP

It's all over but the shouting as far as the Victoria Machinery Depot ball club is concerned. The shagbatters made it three in a row last evening by taking the Navy in their stride without a great deal of trouble. They finished four lengths in front, scoring the runs in the fifth inning when Jimmy Dumeah fed the boys nothing but two-bagger pitches. . . . This afternoon the same two clubs go at it again and most fans expect to see the Rithet Cup series come to an end. . . . Cy Shillito is expected to be handed the mound chores by the V.M.D. management, while Mike Genthon, lanky southpaw, will, no doubt, go to the hillcock for the sailors, who will be fighting desperately to try and stay in the running. . . . Umpire Watson got into some more hot water during the battle, but it didn't seem to worry him the least bit for he stuck by his decision, one which certainly annoyed First Baseman Weiland and Third Sacker Wally Thompson. The trouble came as a result of a close call at the initial sack. (Chuck Restall made a brilliant catch off Dumeah. He picked the ball right off the center-field fence to rob the Navy pitcher of at least a run double. . . . Another large crowd watched the teams in action and what may be the final game of series today, another big turn out will find their way through the Caladonia Avenue turnstiles. . . . Yours truly will play a hunch and take the blue-jackets to win this fourth fixture, and don't say we didn't tell you so ODDS AND ENDS

An interesting personality dropped into the sports department the other night by the name of Tommy Leconovich, of Seattle, who played major league ball with Pittsburgh Pirates, Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns, after graduating from the Portland club. Tommy got his start with the old Vancouver team before the last war and then was sold to Portland. He started pro ball at the tender age of eighteen and pitched his way to the big-time in surprisingly quick time. . . . Fat and forty-seven, Luis Angel Firpo still dreams of bringing to Argentina the world's heavyweight boxing title he had in his grasp twenty years ago when he drove Jack Dempsey sprawling through the ropes only to lose his bid in the second when the rugged champion rallied to knock him out. Firpo's dream rests his hopes on the strong fists and broad shoulders of a 230-pound farmer-boy who is being groomed for an early debut in the United States. The six-foot-five-inch Cestac, who is only twenty-three, has been boxing three years as an amateur without losing a fight in fifty-four times to the post. . . . Congratulations are in order to Mike Hamilton and Mrs. Mike on the birth of an eight-pound daughter. Mike is an ardent sports fan and remarked when told about his latest addition: "Three more like that and I will be able to field a girls' basketball team a few years from now."

Yours truly has a letter from a baseball fan who hopes some day that I crawl out on the limb and that it breaks right in the middle and that I am put out of commission for an indefinite period. Well, isn't that nice of the chap, and the prediction department bailing to the tune of a fine average of .056, or something like that? That limb has broken many times but your scribbler hasn't been hurt yet.

GIRLS MAKE POOR PLAYERS

Louise Brough, the blonde California bombshell, who is one of the favorites to win the current women's national tennis championship at Forest Hills, thinks that girls are pretty poor players considering the time and effort they devote to the game. An article in the current issue of a well-known weekly says that the outspoken Miss Brough "lets rough on the girls on and off the court." One thing about the net star, she doesn't think much of the fair sex as tennis players and she is candid enough to say so, and she includes herself in the criticism, admitting that she can beat a fair, second-flight man once in fifty times. "Considering the time and effort they put into the game, most girls are pretty awful. I can understand when men sarcastically call them fugitives from a kitchen stove. The trouble is that they are too lady-like. They're so concerned about looking pretty and making every move a picture that they forget to sock the ball. There's so much room for improvement in every girl player I've ever seen that I don't feel flattered when I'm compared to anyone," says the twenty-year-old Louise, who explains that over-confidence rather than stage-fright caused her to lose within reach in the national final last year at Forest Hills.

Miss Brough turned to tennis as an escape from presiding the piano, after her family moved from Oklahoma City to Beverly Hills six years ago. She has learned the hard way, so it won't be long before she develops her now-renewed aggressive game, of which power is the keynote. Some day in the near future little Louise expects to join the professional ranks.

Rip Sewell Wins Twentieth Game

First Pitcher in Majors to Reach Mark—Yanks Blank the Senators

By The Associated Press
Troy, N.Y. (AP)—Rip Sewell became the first pitcher in major league history to win his twentieth game Friday when he pitched Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-1 National League victory over Chicago Cubs.

Johnny Vander Meer hurled nine strikeouts, but St. Louis Cardinals came from behind in the ninth inning and scored three runs to night to defeat the second-place Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in the opener of a four-game series. R. H. E. Cincinnati 10 0 0 100-4 10 0 St. Louis 0 0 0 203-5 11 0

McCarthy was struck on the left cheek by a thrown ball while seated in the dugout during the game. Joan Langdon, Nothstein and West in Second Victories in Canadian Meet

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3 (CP)—Three swimmers—Joan Langdon, of Vancouver; Doug Nothstein, of Winnipeg; and Charlie West, of Montreal—splashed to their second victories in the 1943 Dominion championships here tonight.

Miss Langdon, who previously set six Canadian marks, added the senior women's 100-yard breaststroke to the 150-yard medley crown she won last night on the opening programme of the three-day meet.

As on the previous meeting, Miss Langdon defeated Lorraine Fischer, prominent New York performer, Phyllis Allatt, of Montreal, was second, and the winner's time was 1:18.

Nothstein, Manitoba's top-ranking swimmer, took the 200-yard senior men's free style event, beating out William Fyfe, of Toronto, and Bob Johnston, of Victoria. His time was 2:12 9-10. Earlier he triumphed in the 400-yard free style race.

No Extra Racing For the Willows

COUNCIL DECIDES
FORBET L. Shaw, city solicitor, pointed out Friday the City Council had no power to grant a request of local horsemen that the racing season at Willows Park be extended one week.

His interpretation of the Original Code of Canada was that horse racing could be staged only for two continuous weeks at any one track in any one year, or two weeks each of a week's duration could be held provided there were at least twenty days intervening.

Five Runs in Fifth Defeat Sailors

V.M.D. Baseballers Bunch Their Base Hits for 6-to-2 Victory

Score:
V.M.D. 6, Navy 2.
(V.M.D. leads best-of-seven series, 3-1.)
Next game, today:
6:00—Navy vs. V.M.D., Royal Athletic Park.

Putting their base hits together at the right time, and after all that's one of the most important items in a ball game, V.M.D. handed the Navy a 6-2 setback last night at Royal Athletic Park, in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series for the city championship and the Rithet Cup.

Shipbuilders are present holders of the silverware, long emblematic of diamond supremacy, and need only one more triumph to retain possession of the coveted trophy. Their triumph last night was the third in four starts, the other contest ending in a 7-7 stalemate, and the series will terminate this evening with a V.M.D. victory.

Oddly enough, a number of the shipyard workers are hitting better in the play-downs than they did in the sixty-game McGavin Cup schedule, while the reverse is the case with the blue-jackets. And therein hangs a tale, the tale of base hits and runs to win ball games.

Fall of Stalino to Soviets Near After Fifteen-Mile Drive

Kill 2,500 Nazis, Overrun More Than Ninety Villages, Take Guns

LONDON, Sept. 5 (Sunday) (AP).—Russian troops purging a battered German army retreating toward the Dnieper and Dnestr Rivers yesterday seized the rail head of the Axis supply network in the Donets Basin in a fifteen-mile smash that imperilled the steel city of Stalino, Moscow disclosed early today.

One Russian column was only fifteen miles from Stalino after the smashing Soviet drive to kill 2,500 Nazis, overrun more than ninety villages, take guns and capture a tank and a heavy machine gun.

A dispatch from Moscow said the Russian drive was a "great success" and that the German army was "in a state of panic." The dispatch also said that the Russian drive was "a great success" and that the German army was "in a state of panic."

Tri-Partite Meeting Soon

Mediterranean Body Also to Be Named

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP).—A tripartite meeting of Russian, British and American representatives has been arranged for the near future, it was learned today.

In another move signaling closer cooperation of the three nations, a Mediterranean commission is being established on which Russia will be represented.

There was no word as to where and when the tripartite conference will be held. It will be attended by representatives of the State Department and the Russian and British Foreign Offices.

While President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have repeatedly made known their desire for a meeting with Premier Stalin, it is understood that the Soviet leader continues to reply that he cannot at this time leave the battlefield.

The President and Prime Minister are reported to feel that the meeting with Stalin offered no problems which could not be surmounted.

The recount was completed today by the Alabama State Election Commission. It showed that the Republican candidate had won by a margin of 100 votes.

Berlin Hit In Biggest Raid Ever

Drop Fifty Tons of Bombs Per Minute

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP).—Hundreds of R.A.F. heavy bombers—all speedy Lancasters—dropped in a new type of attack—blasted Berlin with 1,100 tons of bombs last night in the most concentrated air raid ever made upon Germany.

The cascade of bombs fell at the rate of fifty tons a minute in this third saturation assault on the Nazi capital in eleven days.

The new tactic—dropping the slower Hurricanes and Mustangs out of the raid's formations and putting the whole fleet over the capital in a concentrated period of time—apparently was designed to cut down heavy night fighters, and seemed successful.

Transportation routes were hit last night over Berlin and in raids on the Rhine and French airfields and in more than 100 other targets.

At least 100 German bombers were missing from the raid Tuesday and the fifty-eight lost in the Berlin attack a week ago Monday night.

A great procession of Mitchell bombers and Hurricanes followed the Lancasters on Tuesday, but the raiding force was broken up by anti-aircraft fire.

What kind of clothing will we wear after the war?

AMONG many things that War has proved is this one thing: War has a great effect on the kind of clothing we wear after that War is over. New materials, new ideas, new methods of production, which are the result of man's ingenuity, find their place in civilian life when the men come marching home. Remember the changes in clothing after the last War? It happened then and it is going to happen again. We at Tip Top Tailors are not now thinking of after the war. We are too busy supplying our Armed Forces with uniforms and as many civilians as we are able to, with their clothing. It is our duty to do this. It is our duty to do this. It is our duty to do this.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP).—The stock market today ended a modestly profitable week with a slight advance, pointing a bit higher despite the usual pre-holiday sluggishness.

Dealings in the market were moderate and the week's volume was not unusual since last September. The market was almost dominated by the country's major exchanges, particularly the New York Stock Exchange, which had a record volume of 173,570 shares, a low since September 12, 1942, compared with 188,000 in 1941. ## Mad Major Back From the Wars

WINNIPEG, Sept. 4 (C.P.)—Winnipeg's "mad major" is back from the wars, a veteran of Dieppe and wearing a decoration, the M.B.E. Military Division.

He is Major Bert Bucharov, Royal Canadian Engineers, second in command of a Commando unit at Dieppe. He went overseas in 1940. Advised that the Canadians had landed on European soil again, this time in Italy, he said:

"Just another soft spot."

The "mad major" title was bestowed on him by Rosa Munro, veteran Canadian press war correspondent who was amazed at the recklessness and ease with which Bucharov carried out his assignments on the beach at Dieppe.

There was a family reunion at the station when he arrived today. His missing three sisters and three brothers were there to greet him.

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If September 5 is your birthday, the best hours are from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m., from 1:15 to 3:15 and from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a.m., from 5:15 to 7:15 p.m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p.m.

It might be advisable to spend a little time planning tomorrow's activities after taking into consideration today's celebration and the traffic difficulties it may entail. Self-absorption may make it difficult to get the average person's undivided attention, unless you insist upon their giving it to you. There should be no opposition to anyone's desire for restful relaxation, today especially by those who have little or nothing to do during the week, for hard workers are apt to experience a decided "let down" on this their day of rest. Simply to gratify personal vanity a good many people will be persistent in wanting to have their own way, and it will be a decided mistake to give it to them. Married and engaged couples, and those who are under Cupid's magic spell might do well to realize that "the faith that stands on authority is not faith," so it might prove helpful to take some things for granted.

If a woman and September 5 is your birthday, you may be assailed by a sense of dissatisfaction unless you have something to occupy your time. The busier you are the happier you are apt to be, for you should have stored up within a remarkable amount of nervous energy. It might pay you to start counting your blessings before complaining that you lack your full share. You ought to be well qualified to be a teacher, modiste, milliner, florist, beautician, business manager, broker, writer, actress, secretary, singer, musician, artist, trained nurse, or in work essential for the furtherance of your country's war aims. Through displaying a love for your home and husband your married life ought to be ideal.

The child born on September 5 is often a natural mimic and should be taught not to use this talent to humiliate or pain others if it is to go through life without making a needless number of enemies. A keen sense of humor, strong dramatic instincts, and a remarkable amount of initiative generally help Virgo's youngsters to attain enviable records of accomplishments.

If a man and September 5 is your natal day you seem destined to have a most interesting and varied career. Evidently you are now entering a period during which you are apt to get a number of very lucky "breaks" and the opportunity of demonstrating your ability, especially if you are a doctor, lawyer, broker, financier, business executive, sales agent, etc.

strical director, inventor, manufacturer, author, journalist, or participant in the present war.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 6

"MILCO"

If September 6 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., 1:30 to 3:30, and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m., 5:30 to 7:30 and 9:30 to 11:30 p.m.

The right inspirational message delivered on this day can do much to cement the friendly relationship that should exist among employees and employers. It might be well for both management and worker to realize that their mutual success will depend, in the months to come, upon the co-operative spirit they both display and their willingness to at all times maintain a clear vision of what mutual understanding and acceptance of purpose may mean for everyone concerned. Today time-tried practices should prove more effective than theories, and conservatism should characterize the words and actions of everybody. Married and engaged couples, and those ready to take unto themselves a lifetime partner, will find it helpful to remember that patience has its own reward, especially today when a flick of it is going to be the primary cause of most of our troubles.

If a woman and September 6 is your birthday you should avoid indulging in too many fads, as they may have a disorganizing effect upon what otherwise will be a very orderly existence. You must guard against saying things in an expressionless tone for you have a voice that you can learn to control advantageously. As a lecturer, teacher, singer, actress, writer, business manager, doctor, lawyer, artist, musician, trained nurse, or doing your part to back the Allies' cause you may find yourself with a brilliant record of worthwhile accomplishments. The indications are that Cupid has arranged for you to have your full share of matrimonial happiness.

The child born September 6 should have impressed upon it at an early age that "the only reward of virtue is to be one," so that it will not be constantly expecting to get paid for doing things, and will realize friendship cannot be a one-sided convenience. Through benefits derived from a liberal education Virgo's children have seldom any trouble in making their way successfully through life.

If a man and September 6 is your natal day you should seek an outlet for your natural talent if you do not wish to suffer from a sense of dissatisfaction. A sensitive nature may cause you to feel shifts far more deeply than anyone suspects. If you permit yourself to do an unnecessary amount of brooding over real or imaginary wrongs you can make yourself decidedly miserable. As a builder, contractor, engineer, inventor, educator, scientist, accountant, librarian, author, journalist, physician, jurist, architect, sales executive, business operator, broker, promoter or aiding to bring destruction to your country's enemies, you may distinguish yourself in note worthiness.

"VIRGO"

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7

If September 7 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a.m., 1:45 to 3:45 and 7:45 to 9:45 p.m. The danger periods are 7:45 to 9:45 a.m., 5:45 to 7:45 p.m. and 9:45 to 11:45 p.m.

You may save yourself from being disappointed if you place no dependency on any statement made by anyone who has hitherto displayed little or no regard for promises they made in the past. A desire to evade issues will be the primary cause of some people's dislike anything to do with a disagreeable subject. To day listen to the dictates of common sense rather than any obligationless assurance in matters involving money. Today, remember that a memorandum worth making is worth saving, and should be filed where it can be easily found if there might be a need for consulting it again. Carelessness today will be the bane of human existence, so you cannot afford to indulge in it. Married and engaged couples, and those who are no longer "heart whole nor fancy free" will find it helpful to realize that "everyone is bound to bear patiently the results of his example."

If a woman and September 7 is your birthday, if you should make an inventory of talents you might be agreeably surprised to discover how many you have. There is just as much danger of your overrating as there is of your underrating yourself. You may have a gift of being able to dominate people without their being conscious of it, unless you make the mistake of trying to do so continuously. As a social welfare worker, trained nurse, political leader, chemist, writer, news reporter, professional entertainer, musician, instructor, sales agent, demonstrator, lecturer, artist, or in some enterprise involving war defence work, you may become quite an important personage in your sphere of activity. Through Cupid's machinations your matrimonial prospects are exceedingly bright.

The child born September 7 is generally a very observant youngster with an exceptionally good memory. Every effort should be made to teach this child not only to forgive his enemies but also the mistakes and shortcomings of friends. Through the proper attitude towards their fellow men those born under Virgo seldom fail to reach the goal of their ambition.

If man and September 7 is your birthday both your thoughts and words must be charitable if you wish to enjoy the degree of popularity you should. So long as you "do unto others as you would have them do unto you" your efforts should be crowned with success, especially if you are in the army, navy, air corps, or some governmental administrative branch of service or are a manufacturer, chemist, inventor, war correspondent, journalist, doctor, jurist, theologian, author, actor, painter, musician, educator, agriculturalist, skilled mechanic, business executive, financier, publicity man or contractor.

BACK in 1970, when the first of the Highway Safety Patrol's 100 new British Columbia Constables were being trained, the newsworthy process of training Constables went something like this: Constables were sent to the very remote town of Pelly in the Yukon. One aspect of the town of Pelly was that it was the only place in the Yukon where you could find a British Columbia Constable. Constables were often sent to Pelly to work on the road link which would connect the town with three existing roads. Constables had a lot of experience working in the Yukon Territory and Alaska.

Alaska's highway program is a major factor in the consistent success of the state's highway program. And yet, it is the support of a small number of individuals that has made it possible. As the late Sen. Frank Chiles, D-Fla., once told me, "I tell about my adventures in the state capital of the Alaska Road & Transportation Builders Association. I tell about the adventures of McDonald that traversed the mountainsides of an Alaskan wilderness, and about the roadways that are the lifeblood of the state. The halls of Alaska's Capitol became a sort of chessboard with me, Mr. Chiles, and his enthusiasm was palpable, and when the late Sam Hill, one of the late Jim Hall one-time highway board members, became one of the road's principal proponents."

An Early-Morning Tour of A Great Produce Market

A Helen and Warren Story

THE huge market deserted! A few white-coated men at their stalls, but no customers. Too late! The restaurant and store buyers all gone. The great early morning rush over. "If we'd only come earlier!" regretted Helen. "We should've been here at least by five." "Well you don't get me up at four a.m. to see any market," grumped Warren.

With no vacation this year, her insistence that they explore New York. Do the things they did in other cities but never at home. And this historic Washington Market headed her list. To have their first "tourist" trip a failure!

"But we'll go through the market anyway. Dear, there's a cheese stall. That'll interest you."

"Some good-looking Gjetost," spotting his favorite Norwegian cheese. "Anybody in charge here?"

"He hasn't come down yet," called a man across the aisle. "Market don't open till eight."

"Not open?" argued Helen. "Why, we thought it opened at midnight!" "That's the wholesale market—few blocks further up. You come down just to see it? Nothin' doing there now. It's all over."

Too late for the wholesale market—and too early for the retail! "You certainly balled up this fault," Warren's disgruntled grunt.

"It's all called the Washington Market—I thought it was all together. Oh, dear, I'm so disappointed!"

But Warren now concentrating on the cheese. Domestic brands of many foreign types.

The famous brown Norwegian Gjetost, made from goat's milk. Munster, Liederkranz, Port Salut, Layden, Blue Vinny.

"Well, till this bird shows up, might as well take a swirl around the market."

A maze of aisles. The stands all white enamel with white marble tops. And all freshly washed.

Now a general opening up. Crates and baskets being unpacked. Goods put on display. All the pungent market smells.

A man at a poultry stall, hanging up a plucked bird.

Stags and Old Roosters. He b. "Dear, what are stags?"

"Middle-aged roosters," volunteered the man. "Not so young but not so tough as the old uns."

"That's enlightening," grinned Warren. "If toughness rates the age we've had some patriarchy!"

Further on a fruit stand. Baskets and boxes waiting to be opened.

"Mangoes!" His cane tapped a slated crate. "They look great. How about it?"

"Oh, they're so messy to eat. Do you really want them?"

"Guess not," passing on in a pretentious wild game display. "Jove, this is the place I've heard about. Where most of the clubs get their game."

The front of a real log cabin with "Hunting Lodge" over the door. And all that stuffed game! Wild geese, grouse, pheasants, plovers, mallard ducks, Scotch woodcocks.

"A good show, but you can't get half of 'em now," he shrugged.

"I wish we could never get them. Such lovely wild things, killed for food. And think how many just winged and left to die in the bushes!"

"Not by real sportsmen. They scour the woods till they find 'em." Further on, a nut stand. All kinds of nuts, shelled and unshelled. A sign:

Cashew Nut Butter. Freshly Ground, 66c lb.

And a pasted-on newspaper clipping, with a picture of the stallman at the grinder.

Helen making mental notes of things to buy. But cashew nuts too sweet. Why not pecan or brazil-nut butter? Perhaps he'd grind her some.

Across the aisle a large fish and oyster stall. The man unpacking a crate of live lobsters. Laying them out on shiny brown seaweed.

"Watch your step, lady!" A crate-laden porter pointing at Helen's feet. Her startled scream as she jumped back.

A long writhing eel!

The son-of-a-gun! chuckled the stallman, peering over the counter. It had wriggled off from the mass of eels on that tray. Was he leaving it on the floor to be stepped on? Waiting till he unpacked all those lobsters?

"Thought you weren't afraid of snakes?" scoffed Warren. "The yell you let out at that harmless eel!"

"You know I wasn't afraid—just startled. Oh, it's cruel to leave it there!"

Stratching some facial tissues from her purse, gingerly she picked it up. Laying it back with the others.

"Thanks, Miss. I was coming 'round for it after I got these fellows bedded. Ain't he a beauty!" holding up a tenderly-washed lobster. "Want to take him home?"

"Not this morning!" Nor any other morning! Nothing cooked alive in her home.

Wandering off. An enormous place. Fruits, vegetables, meats, groceries, delicatessen—all under one roof.

Many windows and many doors. Not yet open, but all looked clean.

"Now we'll go back and see if that cheese man's on the job."

But he wasn't. Nor were any of the other cheese stands open.

"Well, we'll not hang around here any longer. Let's go out and get breakfast. Come back for the cheese."

Outside—no farmers' carts. No quaint old hotels and inns for the market people. None of the traditional around-the-market atmosphere of European cities.

Instead, cut-rate shops. Radio hardware, electrical. None open yet.

"Dear, they may be an old place,"

Yugoslav Effort In Present War

By A SENIOR YUGOSLAV OFFICER

ON the signing of the Tripartite Pact in Vienna, on Thursday, March 25, 1941, intense dissatisfaction was felt in Yugoslavia. And no wonder, for never before in history had there been whole-hearted co-operation between my country and Germany. The national revolution broke out only thirty hours after the signing of the Pact, and the cry broadcast by the Yugoslav wireless station in those historic days, "Better war than the Pact"—which was the cry of the masses—is still fresh in the minds of many.

The mobilization and disposition of the armed forces was incomplete when, at dawn on April 6, the enemy attacked first from Bulgaria in the East, and then from all sides. The isolated kingdom fought desperately against the Germans, as against the Italians. With hardly any armor and an incomparably small air force, she stood no chance. Meanwhile, the Bulgarian and Hungarian forces followed our main army to occupy the territory conquered, in spite of their solemn and freshly-signed pact of eternal friendship with the Kingdom of Yugoslavia. By noon on April 18 operations were over.

But as the whole world knows, and our enemies only too well, certain units and commands would not admit defeat, and retired into the central mountain ranges of the country to continue the fight under the leadership of the famous Staff Colonel Draza Mihailovich. For two years now bands of patriots all over Yugoslavia have waged a relentless war against overwhelming odds and in spite of almost insuperable difficulties. The enemy has been forced constantly to keep an occupying force of thirty divisions to safeguard communications, stores, factories and his authority over the people. At the end of last year there were thirty-eight divisions of which twenty-two were Italian, seven Bulgarian, six German and three Hungarian—a total of about 400,000 men.

Those Yugoslavs who cannot actively help by military service, because of physical disability, age or other justifiable reasons, help their country financially. Individual organizations and emigrant Yugoslavs in all parts of the free world vie with each other in this help to their native land. Finally, highly skilled workers and intellectuals are employed in the war industries of our Allies.

YUGOSLAVS IN AFRICA

Not were the military operations in Egypt last year carried out without the Yugoslav contingent playing its part. For two years already the Yugoslav naval unit has modestly reached co-operating with the forces under the command of the Allied navies in this theatre of war. Through the ages the Yugoslav coast has contributed splendid sailors, brave sailors, tough and fresh for sea warfare. This unit comprises seasoned sailors who forced their way through the Strait of Otranto two years ago in spite of obstacles and the ships of this unit have been modernized and new ones are reaching them to strengthen and enlarge the unit.

The Yugoslav Military Air Force is also industriously preparing for battle. Recruits, both with ordinary and university education, most prefer to join the Air Force where they are training at different aviation schools and courses. Some of them have recently married, leaving their wives—who are also working hard in other branches of the war effort—far from their homes. Our airmen are already acquainted with a certain number of types of aircraft, with which Yugoslavia had been equipped in recent years. The Allied Air Force in this war is making gigantic strides forward. Therefore today Yugoslav flying personnel are training in the newest types of aircraft, ready not only to rival the earlier high achievements of the older generation of Yugoslav airmen, but to surpass them.

Yes, Yugoslavs outside our occupied country are ready, with our Allies, to help our suffering people, aware of the difficult fight before them, but convinced of the success of their task, which will be crowned with victory. To reach that victory, the Yugoslav armed forces have the full support and sympathy of all their Allies, as well as the sympathy of the whole civilized world—BBC Press Service.

South African Engineers Perform Big Salvage Task

CAPETOWN (CP)—A salvage operation described as epic in annals of salvage work in South African waters has been carried out by the South African Engineer Corps. Working under the most difficult conditions the engineers rescued over 3,000 tons of military supplies from a freighter stranded less than a hundred miles from Capetown. The vessel had been so badly battered by heavy seas that a great amount of repair work had to be done before salvaging could commence.

Minimum physical requirements of a Canadian Air recruit: height, five feet; weight, 120 pounds; chest measurement at inhalation, thirty-two inches.

Those Yugoslavs who cannot actively help by military service, because of physical disability, age or other justifiable reasons, help their country financially. Individual organizations and emigrant Yugoslavs in all parts of the free world vie with each other in this help to their native land. Finally, highly skilled workers and intellectuals are employed in the war industries of our Allies.

Hitler's Puppets-Vidkun Quisling

By THOMAS R. HENRY
(North American Newspaper Alliance)

LONDON.—These are demon-haunted hours for several Norwegians including one who lives in lonely grandeur and nightmarish terror in a forty-six-room mansion on the shore of Oslo Fjord—the one man to whose name this war has given a certain immortality.

His heavy, broad-shouldered, six-foot frame is clad in a dark blue uniform with the insignia of the world-wide swastika, in gold on the left arm. His head is small in proportion to his body. His pale, blond hair is thick and unruly. His face is a study in contrasts. He has a boyish smile, but his eyes seldom now. His stare is fierce, but his watery blue eyes seldom are able to look anybody in the face.

"He is showing marked signs of senility," says one of the latest refugees to arrive in London who saw the demon-haunted man a few days before his escape. "His face has grown flabby and is of a greyish tinge. His lips are tightly pressed together and his baggy eyes rove unsteadily."

He has power and wealth beyond his hitherto wildest dreams. He is the absolute and lonely ruler of a little kingdom of his own. The great Villa Grande on the peninsula of Bygdoy, just outside Oslo, before the war was one of the finest private homes in Norway. He has thrown out the owners of eight other villas in the neighborhood and has roped off a large section of the peninsula, including a large public beach, to give him safe seclusion. Whenever he goes for a walk the area in which he walks is roped off.

HAS STORM TROOPERS GUARD

A company of especially equipped storm troopers, wearing uniforms similar to his own, constitute his bodyguard. A shift of sixteen of them always is with him.

Vidkun Abraham Lauritz Quisling listens to the roar of the North Sea tides and his face grows greyer as he realizes that sooner or later there is only one end to his strange adventures... death.

He seems, says a Norwegian psychiatrist here who knows him, to be the victim of a mental condition not classified in medical textbooks—a sort of schizophrenia which becomes frozen at a certain stage of its development. He is a self-centered, self-conscious, self-protected schoolboy looked down upon by his wealthier fellow students. But at the Royal Norwegian Military Academy, Norway's West Point, from which he graduated in 1911, he made a record for brilliance never surpassed before or since. He is the only pupil ever to graduate with a "recommendation to the King" for special consideration.

AIDE TO EXPLORER

He had learned to speak nearly perfect Russian and had made considerable progress in Chinese. Largely because of this he was assigned in 1922 as one of the aides of Norway's grand old man, the Arctic explorer, Fridtjof Nansen, in Russian famine relief work. He had charge of this in the Ukraine. Ever since he has traded much on Nansen's name—a fact especially resented by Norwegians here. He has even said that he is carrying out the policies bequeathed to him by Nansen as a legacy.

Rumors have said the Quislings frustrated the efficient defense of the country. This is quite untrue. There is only one definite instance. The Norwegian commander at Narvik, Col. Sjunnes, failed to resist the Germans. He was at once dismissed. Everywhere else along the vast coast of Norway the coastal batteries, warships and garrisons defended themselves to the last man, or until ammunition was exhausted. Apart from Quisling himself and a mere handful of lieutenants, his small band of followers kept themselves well out of the way until the German Wehrmacht was firmly established on Norwegian soil.

There is no question, however, but that Quisling himself was plotting before the invasion. He spent some time in Berlin in December, 1939, and appears to have made a favorable impression on Hitler. He admits his treason and boasts about it. Immediately after the invasion he proclaimed himself head of the government.

Hitler's success was that in his attack on Norway he revealed, for the first time, all his tactics of modern warfare. The suddenness and the ingenuity of the attack and above all the use of air-borne troops—to capture the principal landing grounds and military centres cast a spell of unprecedented sensation on this campaign.

Thus, perhaps, have come true the angry day of an introspective country boy who was lonely and persecuted at school by wealthier fellow pupils and which degenerated into schizophrenically contorted ambitions to rise at the present any dishonor. But he knows it is all a show and a sham. On the faces of the people he meets is only loathing.

Sir Francis Drake And the Spaniards

FRANCIS Drake was one of the twelve sons of Edmund Drake, a Protestant teacher, appointed by the young Edward VI as "Reader of Prayers to the Royal Navy." With his brothers he heard the sailors who came on the old hulk given to the Drakes as a family residence of their voyages into the sunset to waylay the ships of Spain. When Catholic Queen Mary came to the throne the Protestant parson had to scurry for cover and young Francis Drake, then ten or eleven, found refuge as an apprentice ship's boy on a small coaster plying to France and Holland.

These were the days of the inquisition, and when young Drake, with his Protestant teachings, heard from refugees of the persecutions and tortures carried on by the minions of the Spanish King Philip who was carrying on a bitter war to subdue the Protestant Dutch, he began his life-long hatred of Spain.

Still a youth when Protestant Elizabeth followed Catholic Mary on the British throne, Drake had become a shipowner. He had become a favorite of the master skipper he served under and when the captain died he bequeathed his vessel to young Drake. The Channel was then awarming with privateers who sailed out to plunder the Spanish galleons with their rich cargoes—saffron, cochineal, silk, gold, silver, precious stones, iron, tapestry, wine, each cargo worth a king's ransom.

England and Spain were then at peace. Various ambassadors sought to arrange a marriage between Philip of Spain and Elizabeth. The privateers were frowned upon publicly. Queen Elizabeth publicly expressed indignation that her subjects should presume to attack a ship of His Most Catholic Majesty; but privately she had other views. She did not like Spain; but considered England not strong enough to risk war with the then powerful Spaniards. The Queen played the Spaniards; but she also played the privateers, though they were never sure when they brought home their loot to Plymouth Sound whether the Queen would lay a chain about their necks or a rope.

Drake, after service with the rovers of the Channel, next went into the slave trade. His kinsman, John Hawkins, who had prospered in the business, recommended it to Drake. He recruited a fleet of six ships in 1567, armed and victualled for a long voyage—the Queen privately contributing two ships and the ammunition. Hawkins and Drake picked up their black cargo in Western Africa, on the coast of Guinea by trade and force and sailed across the Atlantic to the West Indies to dispose of their cargo.

There they struck a snag. A Spanish governor forbade the colonists to trade with the English; but the forceful free-traders were not to be denied and by "booting" trade and exercise of force they disposed of their slaves for gold, silver, pearls, sugar and other wares and sailed homeward.

A Caribbean hurricane disabled the squadron and it sought shelter at Vera Cruz. There they found twelve Spanish merchant ships laden with treasure awaiting an escort to convey them to Spain. Hawkins was tempted, but feared that the Queen would frown on the adventure of looting this treasure, so he made an agreement with the Spaniards that neither were to molest the other. The Spaniards, however, broke their promise and fell on the English ships with overwhelming numbers. Hawkins and Drake, on their several vessels, managed to fight their way out of the harbor, but the smaller craft carrying their spoils were sunk.

TO HARRY SPAIN'S SHIPS

With a grievance never to be forgotten, the angered mariners reached England and Drake went to the Queen to plead for a fleet to harry Spanish ships wherever they were found. The Queen was angry and snarled helplessly Drake to get ready. He hid his time. In 1570 he made a foray picking up a galleon or two to pay expenses. In 1572, really seeking adventure, he set out with a fleet of small vessels, the largest of seventy tons.

Off the Mexican coast the small fleet encountered a friendly pirate who had captured a Spanish caravel and joined forces with him. Together they made for Nombre de Dios, the treasure house of the Spanish Main. In two parties with trumpets and drums sounding they marched to the town's central square where after a short and hot fight the Spaniards took flight. Then they sought out the treasure. Before they could load it a sudden channel into the harbor to attack the Spanish fleet. The audacity brought victory. The Spaniards were surprised and dismayed. Drake cleaned up the outer harbor, captured the assembled stores and scuttled the store ships; then he raided the inner harbor where one after another the great Spanish ships were plundered and burned. Then, on the first fair breeze, he sailed out of Cadiz Bay without having lost a man.

AN ADVENTUROUS VOYAGE

It was an adventurous voyage, marked by storms which disabled two of his ships and sunk a third, while a fourth turned back and Drake's Golden Hind alone of the fleet sailed into the Pacific. At Valparaiso a Spanish ship was found with 37,000 ducats on board. This was made a prize. Then Drake landed and took and rifled the town, seizing a fine stock of wine. At Escombro he found the Spanish strength too great, but at Tapachula he found thirteen tons of silver on the pier and eight sheep loaded with fine silver which, with their freight, were taken on board. At Callao he heard that a Spanish galleon had just sailed for Panama with a cargo of gold and precious stones; so he started in pursuit and nine days later caught up with the galleon and rifled her. From this vessel Drake took twenty-six tons of silver, eighty pounds in weight of gold and a rich haul of jewels.

He was now ready to sail home, but he thought that the Spaniards might concentrate against him and decided to seek a Northwest Passage homeward. At Drake's Bay, near where San Francisco stands, he took possession of New Albion for Elizabeth and spent a month overhauling his vessel. He then sailed north and in the foggy seas, despairing of finding a Northwest Passage, he turned his course toward the Carolines, passing the Philippines and Moluccas, and in the Celebes Sea, ran on a rock. After twenty hours, though, when all seemed lost, the Golden Hind struck the reef and resumed her voyage around the Cape of Good Hope to England, where the adventurer received a great welcome.

Elizabeth was in a quandary. She had not wanted to offend Spain, but ignoring her diplomats she ordered the Golden Hind, laden with its fortune, to London, and at a public banquet to the gallant sailor the Queen honored him with knighthood. Drake urged the Queen to take action against Spain, and laid plans before her for a navy and for breaking up Spanish power by attacking her trade. Burleigh opposed, but in 1581 when Philip seized English grain ships the war was on and Drake set to sea again this time

The Dispute About San Juan Island

WHEN the United States boundary was marked on the 49th parallel in 1846 the coastal section was stated to pass through the middle channel between the Gulf Islands, and, with difference as to which constituted the middle channel, the ownership of San Juan Island was in dispute. The Hudson's Bay Company had a farm on the island, and settlers of both British and United States allegiance took up land.

L. A. Cutler, one of the Americans, who filed a potato-patch, had it invaded in June, 1859, by a log from the Hudson's Bay farm and shot the log. The Hudson's Bay men, irate, claimed damages which Cutler refused to pay, and the company's men threatened to take him to Victoria for trial. Cutler and other Americans appealed to Brigadier-General W. S. Harney, in command of the United States Military Department of Oregon, and he sent Captain Pickett and a company of troops to occupy the island for protection against interference by the British authorities on Vancouver Island and the Hudson's Bay Company.

Governor Douglas protested against this occupation and called upon Colonel Moody for military aid. The Royal Engineers were scattered, carrying out various works, and Colonel Moody sent forty-four marines who happened to be at New Westminster, with fifteen sappers. The engineers were sent as the marines, being very few in number, would be required. Had it not been for the cool judgment and forbearance of Douglas a collision would undoubtedly have occurred on San Juan Island. The Governor sent Captain Prevost, the British boundary commissioner, to the island, and Captain Pickett told him he would present any inferior British force landing, fight any equal force and protest against a superior force.

Douglas, after consultation with Admiral Baynes, at Esquimalt, dispatched H.M.S. Tribune, which took the marines and sappers, and instructed that a force equal to that of the Americans be landed—the American force then numbered sixty-six, though afterwards increased to 461. Rear-Admiral Baynes had five ships carrying 197 guns and 2,400 men, and contented himself with a show of force. H.M.S. Plumper and Satellite being sent to join the Tribune.

When Captain Pickett saw the fleet "with guns double-shotted, bristling in his camp" as he stated, he promptly decided not to oppose a landing. "They have a force as much superior to mine that it will be merely a mouthful to them," he said. The admiral, however, emphasized himself, both landing an equal force. The admiral was complimented by the British Government for the line of conduct adopted by him, and it cannot be doubted that it was owing to his moderate and dignified conduct that no collision took place.

General Harney was a belligerent type and wrote brusque and almost insulting communications to which Governor Douglas and Admiral Baynes replied with quiet dignity. Harney sent Lieutenant Colonel Casey with a company of infantry then (not seeing the cow there) ran and looked into the farmyard where she was, and, finding that all was well, came back to the house. His movements had been watched by the two men, who contrived to be seated again by the fire when the dog ran indoors. The conversation went on, and, after a short time, the shepherd said the same words again in the middle of a sentence about something else. Again the dog went to look in the same way. The third time this false alarm was given. Then the dog got up, wagging his tail, and looked his master in the face with such a comical air of inquiry as to say, "Why do you keep saying the cow is in the potatoes when I've told you she isn't?" that the two men could not help laughing aloud. At this, of course, the dog was offended. With a slight growl he laid himself down by the fire again, and his flattened ears said as plainly as could be that he was not going to be made a fool of again.

Sketches of this kind are being in- and executives trying to develop new models. The drawings help officials who are not engineers to visualize the ideas and plans. Buyers of war products can also be shown just what the finished articles will be like.

Korean Folk Tale of The Three Wishes

THIS is a folk-tale of the Koreans—one of the peoples now absorbed by the Japanese in their march of conquest toward their so-called "Co-prosperity sphere in Asia." Korea was one of the earlier acquisitions of the Japanese. After a quarter century of intrigue and aggression the peninsula which was one time known as Korea was incorporated into Japan as the Province of Chosen in 1910. The Koreans, however, like the conquered peoples of the world, are looking to the day of their liberation.

Stretchable Paper For the Typewriter

In printing it is possible to justify each line of type, that is, to space between the letters and between the words in such a way that the line comes out exactly the right length. Ordinarily this is not possible with typewritten lines, since the spaces are mechanically fixed.

However, a method has been devised whereby it is possible to make the right-hand edges of typewritten copy align perfectly, just as lines of type set up by the printer do, says W. P. Kenney in The Boston Monitor.

The secret lies in the use of a special stretchable paper. The writing is done on parallel horizontal strips of tough, thin, finely crinkled and slitted paper. These strips are mounted on a paper backing with a special cement which does not harden, but remains perfectly plastic.

After the lines are typed (making the right-hand margin as even as mechanically possible) the paper is taken from the machine and each typed strip in turn is lifted from the backing by grasping the right-hand end with tweezers and stretched to an alignment mark.

When the typewritten line is stretched to the proper length it is stuck down again by running a finger over the strip pressing it down on the backing.

The stretching of the typed strip all takes place between the letters and between the words, the fibers of the crinkled paper tending to lock together where the type has made an impression, preventing the letters themselves from being stretched out of shape.

After the copy is all aligned the typewritten page may be reproduced by photo-lithography, doing away with typesetting, matrix and stereotyping equipment. It is claimed that by using stretchable paper, girl typists using ordinary typewriters can do the work of linotype operators using equipment costing thousands of dollars.

Soviet Stamp to Honor Russian Hero

A telegram from Moscow tells of the issuing of a ten-ruble stamp with a portrait of Alexander Nevski (1220-1263), Russian hero and saint, and Grand Duke of Vladimir, Alexander, who defeated the Germans, Swedes and Lithuanians when they tried to capture Novgorod and Pskov. He received the surname "Nevski" from the River Neva, on the banks of which he was victorious over the Swedes in 1240. Two years later he defeated the Teutonic knights in "the Battle of the Ice" on Lake Peipus. He was grand duke from 1252 until his death, and the Orthodox Church canonized him for his services to his country.

Curiosities of Kaleidoscope

The kaleidoscope, which was very popular at the beginning of the last century, was perfected in 1816 by Sir David Brewster, though a man named Bradley is said to have invented it about 100 years previous to that time.

It consists of a tube in which symmetrical and multi-colored designs are produced by an arrangement of mirrors, and a familiar child's toy optical toy. Brewster formerly used Brewster's kaleidoscope for illustrating new patterns of carpets and the like.

DOG UNDERSTOOD MASTER'S WORDS

It is probable that no one will ever know to what extent a dog understands language. With some dogs it is necessary to emphasize a word, say it again and again, and always use that word in the same situation.

A man traveling in the Highlands, was once talking on the subject with a shepherd, who insisted that his dog understood everything he said. To prove it, the shepherd and the shepherd went into the cottage and sat down by the fire where the sheep dog sat on the floor.

It happened that the sheep dog was making a supply of calomel pills. The monkey watched him with absorbed interest. He had been so curious in his life. He was certain those little round things were poisonous and very good to eat. No wonder did the doctor turn his back to speak to someone than the monkey pounced on the bowl of pills and examined the entire lot into his pouch. Immediately he fed to his place of refuge—the mast head. Before he could be rejected he had swallowed the last pill, and was beginning to be a very sick monkey, and no wonder, for he had swallowed enough calomel pills to dose the whole ship's company—and the dose was fatal.

Then millions of pounds of foodstuffs were produced in Newfoundland last year, valued at more than $1,000,000.

Squirrel's Pine Cones Jeopardized

A man was riding through the woods, and he heard a squirrel chattering very angrily about something. He liked squirrels, and he was curious to know what the row was about, as he said. Getting off his horse, he went as softly as he could toward the place the noise came from. The rider was amused when he found the reason of the chattering.

It was a pine squirrel, and he had been busy getting pine cones, frimming them, and throwing them down, ready for the winter. He had got a nice pile together at the bottom of the tree. Then, while he was up in the tree, tearing off more cones, a little brown bear came shuffling along.

It happened that at the foot of the squirrel's tree two logs lay, making an angle. The bear saw the logs, sat down, leaned back in this grand armchair, and began to scratch himself. But, unfortunately, he had sat down plump on the squirrel's pine cones.

The squirrel hopped about on the branch nearby beside himself with rage, chattering to the bear. The man with the horse went back a little distance to a spot where he could watch, and shook with laughter at the picture of the contented bear scratching his chest, looking as if he was going to stay there a long time leaning against those logs. With the angry, noisy squirrel on the branch above.

The man felt quite relieved when the bear got up and walked on. Down came the squirrel at once, and was not satisfied, nor did he stop chattering until he had counted over his cones, touched them all, and seemed certain that the bear had not stolen any.

The old man made this proposition: "If we ask riches, freedom from sickness or long life—"

"No," said the old woman. "I should not enjoy these things properly if we do not have a child. What pleasure will it be?"

"Hold! I have not asked. What shall I do? If he had said four things at the good moment. Why did he say only three? Since we wish to have a child, must we forego freedom from sickness, must we renounce riches, must we give up long life? It is hard to decide. Think, then, seriously this night and decide tomorrow."

Breaking off their conversation, both sat plumped in reverie. At the moment of lying down to sleep, the old woman, stirring up with this reflection, "If we could have three or four feet of pudding to set to toast on this brazier that would be really excellent."

She spoke, and there was three feet of food placed by her side.

The husband, beside her with rage, screamed out, "Oh, what a scandal! By one stroke you have lost all our benefits. To punish you I wish the pudding would hang itself on the point of your nose. Immediately the pudding made a leap and attached itself to the old dame's nose."

At this moment the husband cried out, "Hello, angry as I am, I have also by my fault lost a wish. Seizing the sausage to detach it, they pulled, first one, then the other, almost dislocating the nose, but the sausage held on."

"Alas," said the woman in terror, "if this is always to remain hanging here, how can I live?"

The husband, on the contrary, although being at all disturbed, said, "If even yet our wish of fortune is fulfilled, we could make a tube of gold to hide this sausage, and then drawing it out at length, it will be only more beautiful to see."

The wife, still more miserable, cried out, "Oh, wretched me, only to think that fortune should wish to put it there! Well, whether you be rich or live long, as for me, I should like to kill myself."

Saying this, she took a cord and went to strangle herself at the end of a beam. The husband, struck with fear, and touched with compassion, hastened to set her free.

"Stop," said he, "there remains one wish to us. Have your own way about it."

"If that is so, I wish that what hangs on my nose comes loose. Quick, quick, that it may go away. That is my chief wish."

When the sausage fell plump to the ground, and out of the midst of the heaven an angry voice was heard: "You have obtained the three things which you wished for, and have you gained a great advantage? If you wish to enjoy true living in this world be content to live with what heaven gives and do not form vain desires."

The two old folks spitted the pudding, ate it, and from this night they abstained from foolish wishes.

On the morrow, agreeably to their supreme ambition, which was to have a baby, they found a fat little adopted child, they gave him a good education and lived happily to extreme old age.

As early as 390 B.C. the city of Rome was invaded and burned by the Gauls.

Irish Now Worrying Over The Position of Neutral Eire in Post-War World

Many Have Gone to Join in the Fight—Others Sympathetic to the Allied Cause

By JACK CALDER

DUBLIN (CP).—Uneasiness clouds Eire's picture of a future motivated by the principles of increasing nationalism and independence. James M. Dillon, chief critic of the Government, has called Finanna Fail's policy of economic self-sufficiency for Eire "suicidal."

The issue is not so cut-and-dried as that, but the thinking Irishman is worried today about his place in the postwar world. The cattle-breeder is worried, for instance, about whether he will be enabled to sell his cattle in the British market as cheaply as the Canadian breeder. Farmers in the Curragh district have admitted to Mr. "Bare," the Canadian who says they came into the war and we didn't, so they should be able to place their cattle in Liverpool more cheaply than we can.

The fact remains that many of the biggest farm-owners in Ireland are British Army officers who have left neutral Eire to join the fight. Others who fought for us in the last war remain thoroughly sympathetic to the Allied cause and alert to the benefits of enthusiastic Empire economic co-operation.

The farmers recall that during the "economic war" with England, they could pay a big import and still make more money by selling cattle to British buyers than to German. An Irish friend of mine ships something like 1,000 cattle to Great Britain every week now.

WILL GLUT LABOR MARKET

The labor man wonders when he will feel the full impact of the struggle and even now complains that wages have failed to keep pace with rising prices. He knows that when the war ends the great majority of wartime emigrants will flock back from England, glutting the labor market.

He knows that the belligerents will want most of the raw materials that could keep Eire's factory wheels running. Wherever North American production may take two years to regain normalcy, Ireland may still be waiting after that time for the plants and jobs to modernize the plants which have sprung up under Finanna Fail's programme of industrialization.

Dan Breen, after discussing his bullet-riddled fight for Irish freedom, told me of his fears that war profits from other countries might attempt to buy up considerable Irish property to escape heavy taxes at home. He will urge upon the Dail a plan for appropriation of all property bought by outside interests during the war.

These are signs of the uneasiness which still is smothered by the demand for complete neutrality.

Then, too, the Irishman is discomfited by sitting on the sidelines, when to fight well is inherent in him. He is quick to anger when taunted with his country's neutrality during a "holy war" but anyone who approaches him with an understanding attitude soon finds that the man of Eire wonders timorously what America and Great Britain are saying about him.

WELL CLOTHED; WELL FED

Today Eire is better fed and better clothed than any other neutral country in Europe. Organized harvesting of the great bog of turf—called "peat" elsewhere—has helped alleviate the hardship created by an almost complete lack of coal.

Whereas bread, milk and butter are rationed in other countries, Eire has plenty and suffers only slightly from problems of distribution. The Government's well-deserved campaign for extended growing has borne good effect. The severe tea and petrol rationing causes more grumbling than anything else.

CANADIAN OATS REACH EIRE

Recently it was announced that a shipment of Canadian oats had arrived in the country and newspapers from Canada carried reports that Eire was active in the wheat market there. Even Spanish oranges have arrived to vary the restricted diet.

Sean Lemass, Minister of Supplies, warned the country the other day to prepare for a deterioration of supplies, in employment and in general conditions. Then he said: "It may be that nothing we can do will suffice to protect us against permanent damage, but if we must go down let it be only when we have tried every means which unity and wisdom can devise for us to prevent it."

Remittances from the United States, once a major item in the upkeep of the Irish home, have been replaced by similar remittances and postal orders from Irish workers in Great Britain. In some village post offices there are long queues when the money comes from "across the channel."

CYNICISM AND SCIENTISM

But when Eire looks to the future she can't be too certain. Her neutrality, the people feel, is more understandable when the long struggle with England and the crimes of the Black and Tan are considered along with the internal disorder a direct association with England in the war effort would create.

My own impression of postwar Eire is that it will be a country of difficulties, after more than a year in Eire, has been lightened by talking to the Irish. Our biggest problem in devising a new world structure will be to smooth individual cynicism and scientism.

SICILIANS GREET CANADIANS

Sicilian civilians soon learned that the Allied forces had come as liberators, not as conquerors. Here, on the balcony of a building in Agrigento, Sicilians applaud entrance of Canadian troops into the town. Agrigento was captured by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Edmonton Regiment and the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada.

Wingate Expedition Which Penetrated the Fastnesses Of the Burmese Mountains

An Enterprise Which Has Influence On Training for Warfare in the Jungle

TWO members of the expedition which Brigadier O. C. Wingate led into the mountain fastness of Northern Burma a few months ago have arrived in Britain to tell their own story of an intrepid operation in which ordinary British and Gurkha troops proved conclusively that, given the proper training, they are able to master the Japanese in the jungle.

They are Major J. B. Jefferies, of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, "Bibi" Squadron Leader R. C. K. Thompson, one of the R.A.F. officers who accompanied each column to maintain the vital link between ground and air by which the expedition was supplied.

Major Jefferies described how Brigadier Wingate, called to India for the purpose by Field-Marshal Wavell, assembled his force last Summer in a jungle region of the Central Provinces and entered upon an arduous period of training which included most of the monsoon period, and for most of the men was a far more gruelling experience than the operation itself.

The troops were by no means specially selected. The British contingent, it may now be stated, was drawn mainly from the King's Liverpool Regiment, with attached officers from many other regiments, and it had previously been engaged on internal security duties. Units of Gurkha Rifles and Burma Rifles, who as contact men in their own country gave invaluable assistance, completed the force. It had always been one of Brigadier Wingate's convictions that normal, average troops can be trained to fight in the jungle just as the Japanese have been trained, and the remarkable success of his expedition will have a deep influence on the intensified training for jungle warfare that is now going on in India.

Major Jefferies described how some other theories of Brigadier Wingate were put into practice. One of them was that sickness can be kept down by constant marching, and so it turned out; there was hardly a case of malaria while the columns into which the force had broken up were on the move. He also insisted that every minute of time should be used, whether in marching, fighting, caring for their mules, or sleeping—and since sleeping would have meant ten minutes less for sleep each day no one was allowed to shave.

Two of the most unusual aspects of the expedition were the use made of wireless in maintaining contact with the bases in India and of aircraft for the dropping of supplies. The heavy wireless sets, with a range of about a thousand miles, were carried on mules, and although the columns were always changing their positions over an area of some 10,000 square miles constant contact with the air bases was established. Squadron Leader Thompson gave a detailed picture of one supply drop. His column was thirty miles east of the Irrawaddy in a dry water course. On one side was an area of tall elephant grass, in which the troops were ordered to clear a path by tramping down the grass and stripping the few teak trees of foliage. Just before dusk big marker fires were lit, and soon afterwards the transports flew in quite low. In twenty-five minutes three Hudsons had dropped all their load, and D.C.I.s came over at intervals during the night until ten tons of supplies had been dropped, including food for ten days and a new issue of boots.

Dover Cliffs Have Their Secure Shelters to Defy Nazis' Bombs and Shells

Many Tens of Thousands Can Live in the Caves To Which Many Troop When Sirens Sound

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

DOVER, England (CP).—The chalk caves of Dover, safest shelters in the world, are in constant readiness now to keep at least 11,000 people in safety should the Germans launch another large-scale attack on Britain as a diversion to draw Allied strength from the invasion of Southern Europe through Sicily.

These seven deep burrows into the cliffs made it possible to maintain Dover as a working unit in the defence of Britain even when the almost-impossible bombing of 1940 was its zenith. Men and women essential to Dover's existence may live in comparative comfort there with even a touch of the face of the cliffs housing the shelters powerless to drive them out.

Their roofs are 240 feet of solid chalk, a deadening smothering substance that defies bombs and absorbs shells like a vast blower. Some of the caves have been excavated since the war began, but some of them date back more than 100 years to days when smugglers used them to store the precious goods of their trade.

Hundreds of people troop into them every night. They are the regular people who have become used to cave-dwelling like some Londoners have been used to living in underground shelters. The homes of many have been damaged so badly that the caves are not only safer, but more comfortable.

On nights when the raids are bad, other hundreds come. It is estimated that in emergency, 11,000 people could be maintained there, fed and given medical attention, and sleeping in shifts on the tiers of bunks lining the walls along wide passages that are cool in Summer and heated electrically in Winter.

Vin Hoyle, a Yorkshireman, is in charge of one of the older caves, a typical one. Taking me through one not afternoons when he was preparing for his nightly vigil, he started the tour in the emergency hospital, where cots and stretchers are ready to handle emergency cases. In storehouses in another part of the cave food is kept—enough for 300 people for four weeks. This food is changed periodically to ensure its value, and in case one of all of the four water inlets ever are blocked out, a vat of 500 gallons of water is kept. This water is changed every two weeks.
